Admiral Of The Amazon: John Randolph Tucker, His Confederate Colleagues, And Peru

David P. Werlich

John Randolph Tucker (January 31, 1812 - June 12, 1883), who served as an officer in the navies of three nations, was born in Alexandria, Virginia. His parents were John Tucker, originally from Bermuda, and Sara Douglas. David P. Werlich: Admiral of the Amazon: John Randolph Tucker, His Confederate Colleagues and Peru. Charlottesville, VA: University Press of Virginia. 1990. John Randolph Tucker attended a private school near his Winchester home, then entered the Richmond Academy. He finished his studies at the University of Virginia, graduating with a legal degree in 1844. Voters elected Tucker Attorney General of the Commonwealth of Virginia in 1857, and he served during the American Civil War, until the Commonwealth surrendered to Union forces in 1865. His siblings also actively supported the Confederate cause, two as Confederate doctors, Nathaniel Beverley Tucker as a Confederate diplomat, and his lawyer brother St George Hunter Tucker recruited the Ashland Grays part of the.
Admiral of the Amazon: John Randolph Tucker, His Confederate Colleagues, and Peru. By David P. Werli December 1991. In 2000, the Peruvian economist Hernando de Soto published The Mystery of Capital, his landmark study of the relationship between property rights and poverty. De Soto claimed that some $9 trillion of "dead capital" was locked up in land, homes, and businesses belonging to poor people who did not technically "own" them.