The communicative approach chapter. In this method, the classroom atmosphere is crucial. Communication in the classroom: applications and methods.
In the classroom Classroom activities guided by the communicative approach are characterised by trying to produce meaningful and real communication, at all levels. As a result there may be more emphasis on skills than systems, lessons are more learner-centred, and there may be use of authentic materials. Further links: https://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/article/making-reading-communicative. https://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/article/making-writing-communicative. https://www.teachingenglish.org.uk/article/kieran-donaghy-short-sweet-using-short-films-promote-creativity-communication. Need a litt What then is the 'Communicative Approach'? It is the theory that language is communication and it is on this theory that the methodology used in Language Link schools is based. The set of principles which underlie this theory include: Learners learn a language through using it to communicate. In order to foster communicative competence the teacher has two main roles: the first being to facilitate the communication process in the classroom and the second, to act as an independent participant within the learning-teaching group. The teacher is also expected to act as a resource, an organizer of resources, a motivator, a counselor, a guide, an analyst, and a researcher. This list is not exhaustive: there are many other minor roles expected of a teacher. Classroom activities guided by the communicative approach are characterized by trying to produce meaningful and real communication, at all levels. As a result there may be more emphasis on skills than systems, lessons are more learner-centered, and there may be use of authentic materials. Richards and Rodgers (1986) described CLT as an approach rather than a method, since it. An approach to teaching, rather than as a teaching method CLT came out at the time when language teaching was looking for a change with a clearly defined set of classroom practices. The basic features and principles of communicative approach are. to. enable.