BIBLIOGRAPHY

Primary Sources:

1. Manual of Election Law, Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1997,
2. Handbook for Returning Officers (At Elections where Electronic Voting machines are used), (reprint 2002), Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1998,
3. Gazette of India, 1990 onwards
4. Gazette of Meghalaya, 1990 onwards
5. Statistical Report on General Elections, to the First Lok Sabha, National and State Abstract and Detailed Results, Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1951
6. Statistical Report on General Elections, to the Second Lok Sabha, National and State Abstract and Detailed Results, Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1957
7. Statistical Report on General Elections, to the Third Lok Sabha, National and State Abstract and Detailed Results, Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1962
8. Statistical Report on General Elections, to the Fourth Lok Sabha, National and State Abstract and Detailed Results, Election Commission of India, New Delhi, 1967

SECONDARY SOURCES:

5. Arora, Balveer and Varney, Douglas (eds.): Multiple Identities in a Single State - Indian

32. Chatterjee, Partha (ed.): State and Politics in India, Oxford University Press, Delhi, 1997.

70. Kothari, Rajni (ed.): Caste in Indian Politics, Orient Longman, New Delhi, 1970.

This paper will analyse coalition politics in India over the period of coalition and/or minority governments from 1989 to the present, from the points of view of institutionalization, congruence and... A large number of Indian states—in a federal system that has become increasingly decentralized since the mid-1990s—have also experienced coalition politics. Three questions naturally arise: (1) have coalitions become institutionalized at the federal and state levels, as least as far as the core formateur parties are concerned, or do they keep varying with changes of partners? This is the institutionalization question. Parties and the party system. In A. Kohli (Ed.), India’s democracy. Princeton University Press: Princeton.